Talk of Trinidad

Cricket art on show at museum

On the heels of the West Indies victory over Pakistan in the opening match of the ICC Cricket World Cup, the Ministry of Community Development, Culture and Gender Affairs opened an art exhibition on cricket at the National Museum and Art Gallery.

Last Wednesday, Pennelope Beckles, Minister of Public Utilities and the Environment, acting for the Minister of Community Development, Culture and Gender Affairs headed a large number of guests that previewed the exhibition entitled Art in Cricket.

The exhibition features the works of 32 artists including William Bannister, Paul Bermudez, Ivan Bovas, Jackie Hinkson, Noel Norton, Glenn Roopchand, Bill Trotman, Keith Ward and Rick Xavier.

Ivan Bocas, right, explains his At the Wicket 2 trophy to Giselle Laronde-West and her children Kye and kristof. Photos: Andre Alexander

Gerald Porrier, Canadian security expert, and his wife Jullian.

Christine Paul, wife of Police Commissioner Trevor Paul, shares company with Donna Cox, corporate communications manager, NFM, and Sherma Mitchell, communications specialist, Ministry of Tourism.

David Bereaux entertains guests.

Artist Shannon Hutchinson talks about her painting with television producer Sigmond Cromwell.

Paul Bermudez explain his Quickit board game to Loren Rodriguez.

Pennelope Beckles, Minister of Public Utilities and the Environment acting for the Minister of Community Development, Culture and Gender Affairs, centre, takes in the art with Vel Lewis, curator of the National Museum, left, and Bill Trotman.